Title : Holes, Portals, Wounds and the Traumatized Text - How to get back from here?

Run Time : 10:38

Content Warning : This piece contains references to self-harm, rape, abuse and mental and physical illness.

Starting from the question of what ontologically constitutes a physical or metaphorical hole inside a text the piece follows a journey of non-linear narrative time travel. A hole can be an entrance and an exit. The way in and out. It can be regarded as both a doorway to other “underground” areas and the mark of a violent act – a wound – which renders it as a portal for traumata to traverse between temporal layers.
